- A. Call to Order
 - Mr. Twedt-Ball called the meeting to order at 4 pm.
- B. Consent Agenda Action
 - Minutes: January 4, 2024

Ms. Hart moved to accept the consent agenda. Ms. Casey seconded. The action carried with unanimous approval.

- C. Public Comments and Communications
 - There being none, the meeting continued
- D. Foundation Report Charity Tyler
 - The Foundation hosted a public launch for the Westside Library Big Dreams capital campaign. Ms. Tyler feels the event went very well. Many supporters attended and asked great questions. The event has inspired gifts and attention to the project. Even though the campaign is in the public phase, behind the scenes work continues with donor conversations and six grant applications totaling more than $2 million. Approximately 65% of the project funding total has been secured.
 - Mr. Elges asked if there is an estimate of what a community small donation pool would look like. The feasibility study consultant did not provide estimates of that detail, though in general felt the Foundation could safely raise $8-10 million for the project. Typically, a public phase raises about 40% of the goal. Ms. McDermott asked what counts as a small donation. Ms. Tyler noted that recognition on the donor wall will be $1,000 at a minimum. The downtown project's minimum was $500.
 - Ms. Hart encouraged trustees to mention the project in conversation, which could inspire gifts. Ms. Tyler noted that the Foundation board members set a goal of talking about the project with at least five people.
- E. Friends of the Library Report Libby Slappey
 - At the public launch, the Friends also announced their $250,000 commitment to the Westside Library project. They look forward to supporting the new building.
 - Ms. Slappey reported that Dolly's birthday party sale was successful, and they are looking forward to their Valentine's sale. She shared stories about how people use the Friends to support their library including a patron who shopped the stacks in the Friends storage room; a rotary club member donating 50 children's books from the Friends to local schools; and that TrueNorth held a book drive and donated a wide variety of books to the Friends, some of which will be sold on Amazon.
- F. Board Education: Service Navigator Partnership Update Todd Simonson
 - Public Service Manager Todd Simonson reported on the service navigator program, in partnership with Willis Dady Emergency Service. The program, which has evolved over the last four years, is to support our most vulnerable patrons, typically individuals experiencing homelessness. Two navigators from Willis Dady spent on average about 30 hours a week at the library. Their regular duties include building relationships, proactive behavior intervention support, helping patrons find resources or services, and overseeing the Summer Ambassador Program. The current contract ends this fiscal year.

- Mr. Simonson provided data and noted that data is dependent on seasonal needs. For example, there are higher needs in the winter. Navigators assist in three to 10 intakes for housing assistance a week. In general, they have about five to 10 daily interactions with patrons supporting the Housing First model. The team also builds relationships with patrons and provides active service support to the public service team.
- Mr. Twedt-Ball asked about the navigator personnel and how interactions work. Currently, we have one navigator who has been here about a year after the previous navigator joined the library team. Average turnover is about once a year for a variety of reasons people tend to move up within the Willis Dady organization. Ms. Schmidt shared that this is something we consider as we examine the overall program. Non-profits tend to have a lot of turnover but that can be difficult when navigators have to re-establish relationships. Interactions can vary based on the patron and their respective wants and needs. We respect the individuals and may just say hello instead of actively promoting services and resources.
- Ms. Casey asked if the navigators have helped reduce behaviors. The navigators can help be a proactive preventative resource outside of library staff. We know anecdotally that navigators perform actions to reduce library staff intervention, which starts a progressive discipline process. Although this is not measurable, we know it helps patrons remain in the building successfully.
- This program started as we had more homeless individuals in crisis in the building. The partnership helped fill a gap where we did not have adequate staff training. Ms. Schmidt did not want to remove people from the library if we could do something else. The Public Service team tries hard to give people every opportunity for success. Navigators can support patrons who need more extensive needs so Public Service leadership can help address smaller issues.
- G. Library Board Committee Reports
 - Advocacy Committee Rafael Jacobo, Committee Chair
 - Mr. Jacobo reported that while there is no action, the library team is watching the legislative session for bills that directly impact public libraries.
 - Ms. Schmidt reported that a new bill was proposed hours before this meeting and we will put out an advocacy call to action. SSB 3131 was introduced today with a public hearing on Monday, and calls to remove governance from library boards and giving that to City Councils. The library team will send an eblast tomorrow and update the website with pertinent bills and their respective information. In addition, Ms. Schmidt and Ms. McNamara will develop talking points for people to use in communicating with their legislative leaders.
 - The library is also watching another proposed bill, which does not have a hearing yet, to remove protections of public libraries under obscenity laws. This could impact where and how library materials are displayed to prevent access to children. If that bill progresses, an email alert will be sent out.
- H. Library Board Committee Reports
 - Finance Committee Monica Challenger, Committee Chair
 - Ms. Casey reported for Ms. Challenger on December 2023 financials. We're halfway through the fiscal year. There are no concerns for revenues and expenditures at this time.
 - Action: FY25 Budget. Ms. Schmidt explained the FY25 budget changes. Highlights are below.
 - In the Operations, or 151 budget, we predict an increase of $25,000 in local government grants and reimbursements. We are reimbursed annually for library service to unincorporated Linn County residents based on the previous year's usage data. Our data supports an increase. In turn, that revenue will be increased for $20,000 in contract labor expenses and $5,000 in external banking/financial fees. We anticipate hiring a consultant for the next strategic plan development and also to budget appropriately for consistent increased credit card fees. Any other changes are movements from a line item to another to reflect actual expenses. Anything under Other Expenses are set by the City and automatically offset. In addition, the City always budgets high for benefits to ensure we have enough money.

- For Special Revenue, under 7010, we budget for grants and donations. It looks a little strange because by law, we have to budget for expenses in order to spend the money. If we don't receive the grant funding, we can't spend it and it does not harm our operations. Anticipated revenues are based on information we have at the time of budgeting.
- Capital projects in 316 always show the current fiscal year and projections for a five-year plan. Ms. Schmidt talked through multiple projects, such as the Westside Library Project, Downtown Library plaza repair, Downtown Library roof repair, and materials. Ms. Schmidt shared that the library intends to ask the Foundation board to support the plaza repair with capital funds they hold. The Downtown Library roof repair is a placeholder in the budget. We cannot wait until July to start and the City FMS department has reallocated funds to start this spring. In addition, we are still actively pursuing warranty coverage for the repairs. Materials spending looks like a reduction in a budget - we will still have $500,000 and the difference is made up by the City was closing out expiring bonds. Ms. Schmidt also noted that, although these are not reflected in our budget, Public Works has funding to add a road for the Westside Library Project and as FMS will have an increase to support the library HVAC systems.

The committee recommendation to approve the FY25 budget as presented in the packet carried with unanimous approval.

- Personnel and Policy Committee Susie McDermott, Committee Chair.
 - Action: 2.00 Collection Development. This policy defines a way to respond to the public on the library materials they'd like in our collection and how we maintain a collection. Materials Manager Erin Horst reports that patrons request materials regularly. Print material requests are generally fulfilled, though the digital requests are greater than our budget allows. The policy also dictates how we weed materials. For example, books can be purchased in high volume to meet demand and later weeded, given to the Friends. There are no recommended changes for this policy.
 - Action: 2.02 Gifts and Memorials. This policy gives guidance on how gifts and memorials are directed including funds, property, art, and donated materials. The only change is to clarify that materials donations may be integrated into the collection or given to Friends for sale at the library's discretion.
 - Action: 2.03 Evelyn Zerzanek Collection This policy had extensive edits in 2022 when we took over storage of the collection. It was previously held at the Cedar Rapids Museum of Art following the flood. There are no recommended changes. The committee recommendation to approve the reviewed policies as presented in the packet carried with unanimous approval.
- Westside Project Committee Jade Hart, Committee Chair
 - The committee and staff have worked with OPN to further hone the building's layout following a square footage reduction to remain in budget. The reduction will not impact the exterior shape of the building or public spaces. We will host a final community open house on March 25 to share final designs. In addition, we're preparing a request for bid to hire a commissioning agent for LEED certification as the project unfolds. Ms. Schmidt also met with OPN and Design Engineers to discussion the possibilities of being solar ready, a net zero building design, and potential battery capability.

 Action: Westside Library Recognition Opportunities. The Foundation developed a list of recognition opportunities for board approval in 2023 for known items, such as the children's library and young adult area. Ms. Tyler is requesting that the board approve the new list to share with donors. As the design is nearing completion, Ms. Schmidt and Ms. Tyler will continue to look at other opportunities.

The committee recommendation to approve the revised Westside Library Recognition Opportunities as presented in the packet carried with unanimous approval.

- I. Library Director's Report
 - Ms. Schmidt shared that physical circulation continues to increase. Physical visits, if they follow projections, should break 400,000 visits this year. Many of our standard outcome data points are doing better and we're hopeful for FY24 to be a baseline data year.
 - Over the next few years, we anticipate tax caps impending growth will significantly impact cities. We are being intentional about decisions we are making now may not be sustainable in future due to the tax cuts.
- J. Old Business
 - There being no old business, the meeting continued.
- K. New Business
 - There being no new business, the meeting continued.
- L. Adjournment
 - There being no further business, the meeting adjourned at 5:23 pm.

EDITORIAL FELLOW | CHRIS ESPERSEN

Public libraries are a community treasure

T can do it, I believe 6 in myself, but I need help," Dara Schmidt describes the 89-year-old woman who visited the downtown Cedar Rapids library because she wanted to open an email account. Her son had told her she could get regular pictures of her grandchildren if she just would get an email address. The staff helped her through the process and are now treated to adorable pictures every Tuesday morning, when she makes her regular visits.

There are over 500 libraries in Iowa, and they are filled with so much more than books. They hold countless stories like this one.

Two bills that would have negatively impacted libraries may have stalled in the House and Senate, but there still is reason to be wary. As Deborah Caldwell-Stone said of the wave of legislation that could impact libraries, "This is not a culture war; it's a threat to our democracy.

Schmidt, Library Director of the Cedar Rapids Public Library, described what she sees as the beauty of Iowa libraries. "Where else can you go where a young family is going to story time and having a time of their lives and a young professional is also there using it as a working space? Someone down on luck that can have a warm place to be and just read a book. Seniors use us because it is a safe place to be." They can and SSB 3131 were so conescape isolation. "What a wonderful thing to be able to be in public — they can interact with others or sit quietly in a comfortable chair and just not be alone. And no one needs to pay any money to walk in the door."

Libraries provide an ever-expanding role in the lives of Iowans. Beyond lending books and other materials, they offer access to computers and the internet, offer free programs for all age ranges, and provide climatecontrolled environments for the unhoused or those without access to heating and cooling, a consideration that is increasingly important given the weather extremes we have experienced in Iowa.

They provide meeting spaces for all groups, even groups like Moms for Liberty who would like to remove some of their offerings. Schmidt is adamant that everyone has the right to use public library services. "There is an active chapter here and they meet at the Cedar Rapids Public Library. They are welcome to do so. I don't have to agree with others to let people meet in public spaces. We are open to everyone.

Libraries act as navigators and safe spaces, and their staff provide their valuable research skills to patrons on a broad range of topics. During the pandemic they were a lifeline to parents struggling with home schooling. They are now partnering with public health to improve the lives of Iowans by posting Community Health Workers in some locations. Public libraries empower communities and are vital to our democracy

Which is why HSB 678 cerning. They go beyond the so-called culture war of banning certain books (don't get me wrong, discrimination and threats to intellectual freedom are very concerning) but they threaten the very existence of libraries by changing language that municipalities "may" levy taxes to fund public librar- ible and humbling honor ies instead of mandating this funding (SSB3131) and having already busy city councils more actively involved in replacing library board members and library operational issues (HSB 678).

The ways Cedar Rapids libraries and library staff help residents can be heartwarming, but also life-changing. Rebecca Vernon, librarian at the Cedar Rapids library, shared in a Director's Report her impact on a library visitor last year. "I was helping a patron release a print job. She shared that, thanks to the library's computers, she was able to get a new job recently. She was excited that soon, she would now be able to get her own computer!" Whether it is finding a job, gaining citizenship, or developing a reluctant child's love of reading, the investments made in this public institution are returned multifold.

Schmidt's first job was a shelver at the Manchester library. She moved away from Iowa and tried other occupations but realized that what she really loved was working in the public library. "People who work, volunteer, use libraries, these people actually believe in them." Cedar Rapids has been able to build a new Westside library and will eventually move out of the currently rented space, thanks to the estate donation of Nadine Sandberg. Schmidt describes this was not the result of a cultivated relationship but instead a random act of faith. "Her estate lawyer said she wanted to leave her legacy to some place that would do great things with it. What an incredand responsibility that people care out there and have faith and belief that libraries do and will continue to do great things for their community.

Matt McGarvey, executive director of Telligen Community Initiative, also sees the immense value of libraries and has invested considerably in them. "Our experiences with grant support to projects that utilize libraries to address place-based health disparities is real. he said. "Libraries have much to offer beyond books. They are a marker of community vitality. Similar to parks, community centers, and schools, library settings can and do have a potential as a venue for health knowledge and activity in any community if viewed creatively."

What can you do? Keep writing to your legislator, showing up at the Capitol, but more than anything, invite others to understand the value that libraries offer all Iowans, regardless of politics or socioeconomic standing. Schmidt encourages Iowans to begin the conversation with their legislators with an invitation instead of just talking at them, by saying, "I would love to invite you to a program so you can see what value us Iowans get from libraries." She continues, "engage them in a positive way to show the value. We need people who are passionate. We need people to get mad, but we also need to be able to have conversations.'

Support political reform

ccording to polling, fewer than onethird of Americans are remotely satisfied with our politics, a record low. Trust in government, including executive, legislative and judicial, is also at an alltime low. An increasing number of Americans have unfavorable views of both major parties. Finally, more Americans than in years past wish they had more options, including better candidates and additional political parties.

Americans are increasingly supportive of political reforms, particularly term and age limits, and efforts to reduce the influence of money in politics. They also seek reforms in how we select our elected representatives, understanding that these changes may be necessary before other objectives can be achieved.

Two election-focused reforms include open primaries and ranked choice voting (RCV). I am a fan of both and, for the past few years, I have supported a new group, Better Ballot Iowa, which seeks to allow RCV as an option to interested counties and municipalities in Iowa. Despite being prohibited by legislative statute, the Iowa Legislature has introduced new legislation this year to prohibit it, again. Given this renewed interest, it is worthwhile considering the pros and cons of RCV.

On the downside, there can be an upfront cost with RCV implementation, such as voter education and acquiring new hardware and software, but the long-term costs are unchanged. RCV is easy to understand for most voters, involving ranking candidates as they might rank movies or books. While some districts have reported delays in election outcomes with RCV, those delays are usually minor and can be overcome with technology and experience.

RCV is not more susceptible to fraud or outside manipulation than plurality voting, and auditing of election outcomes remains possible. RCV should eliminate costly and poorly attended runoff elections. While data is limited, RCV can result in increased voter turnout and engagement. Despite claims to the contrary, there is no evidence that RCV benefits one party over another. RCV frequently does not change the result of elections compared to our current plurality voting system.

Most state and federal legislative districts are uncompetitive, and many are not even contested by another major party candidate in any given election. RCV will not change the outcome of a race in which there is only one major party candidate or in a district or state dominated by one party or another, and incumbency advantage persists. Any time there is a candidate who earns the support of half or more voters, that candidate would win with either RCV or plurality voting. Only when three or more candidates are on the ballot, each with a good-sized base of support, will RCV sometimes yield a different result than plurality voting. For example, in a tight three-way race using plurality voting, a candidate could win with just over one-third of overall voter support. With RCV, that same candidate might still win, but there is a chance that one of the other two candidates ends up securing half or more overall voter support. Which outcome is best is more a matter of preference, I think; not that one choice is right and the other wrong. I would prefer that the winner of a given election has garnered a majority of overall voter support, rather than a candidate who manages to earn as little as one vote more than his or her closest competitor, but that's just me. While RCV may not significantly alter the outcome of most elections, its potential lies in its ability to influence the broader political landscape long before Election Day. Candidates have an incentive to appeal to a broader swath of voters, encouraging less negative campaigning. Minor party and independent candidates have a greater potential to get new ideas out in the public square. Some of those ideas will be valuable, attracting support among voters, and major party candidates will have to pay attention. Voters will appreciate not simply being fed partisan political boilerplate but feeling they can have a meaningful voice in the political process beyond voting RCV might help change the state of our politics. Allowing Iowa counties and municipalities to experiment with political reforms, including RCV, should be encouraged, not prohibited. Permitting such "home rule" is the essence of our "laboratories of democracy" ideal, the foundation of our federalism. State overreach, undermining the sovereignty of Iowa counties and municipalities, as exemplified by existing and proposed legislation, should be opposed.

It's time governments consider paying doctors to practice in rural areas ural health care is in crisis, and while many solutions have been offered to encourage specialist physicians to practice in small towns, the fact that rural health care still is in crisis suggests that none have been successful.

New ideas are needed, and an Australian government program that provides cash subsidies to specialists to regularly offer clinical care in rural parts of the country could be a viable model for rural states in the U.S.

I was part of a research team that looked at the potential effectiveness of giving government subsidies to doctors to practice at least part time in rural parts of Iowa, the heavily rural state where I live. We looked at cardiologists, which are an especially critical need in rural areas, where residents are more apt to suffer from heart disease, high blood pressure, and stroke. Studies have shown that just a single annual visit with a cardiologist can have significant health impacts.

However, Iowa has fewer than 200 cardiologists, almost all of whom live in urban areas, and their numbers are expected to drop even further as many retire and aren't replaced. The equivalent of 2,000 cardiologists leave practice every year in the United States, while fellowship programs graduate only about 1,500, a net loss of about 500 annually. In Iowa, the number of cardiologists is expected to drop by 10 percent in the coming years.

To make up for that lack of rural presence, many Iowa physician group practices have developed a strong network of visiting consultant clinics where urban physicians in many specialties, including cardiology, make periodic visits to rural areas to see patients. The networks provide reasonable access and effective care to most people who live in communities too small to support a full-time cardiologist.

Other options have been considered. One suggestion, recruiting foreign doctors to practice in rural areas, has met with some success for primary care physicians, where the bulk of the funding is targeted. Increased use of telehealth also has been proposed, but patients have proved reluctant to use it for complicated health concerns.

While the outreach clinic model has been the most successful in plugging holes in rural cardiology access, it still has weaknesses. Physicians who participate in the program are unable to see patients while they're driving to the outreach clinic.

This "windshield time" can last as long as two to three hours in Iowa and includes not just lost opportunities to see patients but also mileage and other vehicle expenses. The opportunity costs are significant enough that only about half of Iowa's cardiologists participate in an outreach clinic.

Our research team wanted to find out how to mitigate the potential loss of cardiologists and encourage more to participate in these visiting clinics. We looked at a program in Australia. which has an even greater rural health care crisis than the United States. There, the Australian government's Rural Health Outreach Fund subsidizes qualifying specialists to motivate them to practice in rural areas. Our study found that if a payment program were adopted in Iowa to subsidize physicians for their windshield time, the payments would cost about $430,000 a year to maintain the current level of cardiology care in rural areas, even after the anticipated decline in numbers.

We also looked at the costs of recruiting and training foreign-educated doctors to practice in rural areas. For such a program to be more cost effective than the public subsidy, it would have to attract five cardiologists who would work for $81,000 or less a year, a highly unlikely outcome. They would also provide far less coverage than the network of outreach clinics for the same amount of money.

While our study looked only at cardiology, the findings suggest similar public subsidies would be an effective way to at least maintain health care coverage in rural areas in other specialties. While we've generally been reluctant to suggest the government pay providers to practice in certain locations, we may have few other feasible options to provide equitable access to necessary health care to some 60 million rural Americans.

The entire day is free and open to the public from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the downtown library, 450 Fifth Ave. SE, Cedar Rapids. Sponsors include the Iowa Economic Development Authority, the National Endowment for the Arts, Coe College, Orchestra Iowa, the University of Iowa music therapy faculty and students, and the Cedar Rapids Public Library.

Harmony School of Music is the organizer of the event, but numerous local artists and organizations contribute with free activities and performances for all ages. The afternoon will culminate in a play-and singalong performance, craft activities, infant and child music classes, story time and a diverse range of performances such as orchestra, rock and hip-hop.

The Harmony School of Music launched in 2017 to use the "power of music" to transform the lives of children, according to its website. Culturally ear Abby: I'm a 32-year-old woman who has been with my boyfriend, my first and only partner, for 11 years. Overall, our relationship is healthy. He's smart, kind, supportive, caring, loyal and funny. I can see us getting married and living a happy life together.

The problem is, aside from a few short-term gigs, he hasn't had a job for the last six years, when he left his office job to move with me for my career. I've done well. But although he has applied for many jobs, no one has hired him.

Last year, he developed a heart condition, and he can no longer perform physical labor. He also suffers from depression. So, I've been paying for nearly everything.

I want to progress in life and have an equal partner. We've discussed marriage, and I think he's "the one." But how long should I hold out hope of him finding a job? — Burdened in Florida

Dear Burdened: Has it occurred to you that the reason the man you love has been unable to find employment all this time may be connected to his depression?

It would benefit you both if he consulted a doctor and sought treatment for it.

Free and low-cost counseling is available through the county, as well as through colleges and universities with departments of psychology.

Please explore this before ending your relationship because it could be the solution to your problem.

Subject: January 2024 Financial Report

I have reviewed the January 2024 financial information for Library. Remember – the budget serves as the City's financial and spending plan for the year. Regardless of how much money is available by fund – you must have expense budget to spend. When reviewing budget to actual, we assume:

- At least 1/12 of revenue will be received per month (58.3% thru January). Actual revenues are expected to meet or exceed budgeted amounts. Our department depends on these revenue streams to fund expenses.
- No more than 1/12 of discretionary, fleet, facilities, and fuel budget is spent per month (50% thru January since due to processing times, these expenses normally have a 1 month lag).
- For all other expenses, no more than 1/12 of the budget is spent per month (58.3% thru January).
- I used this as a guide to gauging concerns when reviewing your areas.

Here are highlights or concerns that you should be aware of, or that need addressed:

Operations – 151XXX:

- Total revenues are above target at $512K or 63% of the $819K budget.
- Total expenditures (excluding transfers out) are $4.5M or 58% of the $7.74M budget.
 - Overall expenditures are trending to spend on budget.
 - Personal Services are at $3.3M or 57% of the $5.8M budget (the budget includes reduction of $135K for refresh).
 - Total discretionary expenses are high at $614K or 74% of the $827K budget.
 - Full fiscal year of Willis Dady Service Navigator costs have posted. $75K
 - IT annual costs for software maintenance also incurred in July (always a timing thing)
 - Other expenses are at $605K or 56% of the $1.1M budget.
 - Full fiscal year of Ladd Library rent has posted as well as unbudgeted cyber insurance premiums.
 - Facilities Maintenance has posted thru partial October activity & November for $61K. October was a partial billing due to timing and additional final work order was created in December but is not yet posted to Library for $16,101.
 - Energy Management has posted thru January activity for $3,858.40.

Special Revenue – 7010XX(January analysis & FY 2024 Budget Amendment):

- Total revenues are above target at $48K or 24% of the $200K budget.
- Total expenditures (excluding transfers out) are $154K or 26% of the $582K budget.

CIP – 316XXX (January analysis & FY 2024 Budget Amendment):

- Total expenditures (excluding transfers out) are $483K or 8% of the $6.2M budget.
 - 316750 books includes a transfer in of $95,695 of older bonds needing to be spent. You can spend this down at any time but will need to amend the budget if you want to spend in FY 24. FY 25 bonds are reduced by this amount.

Confidentiality of Library Records

It is the policy of the Cedar Rapids Public Library not to release information that would reveal the identity of a library patron who checked out or used certain materials or services or requested an item of information from the library.

No individual except authorized library staff shall have access to circulation or patron records other than his or her own without the cardholder's consent.

The library interprets possession of a card or card number as consent to use it unless it has been reported lost or stolen, or there is reason to believe that consent has not been given.

Library accounts for which a bill has been sent may be revealed to parents or guardians of minor children, a collection agency, or law enforcement personnel.

Confidentiality extends to information sought or received and materials consulted, borrowed, or acquired and include Internet and electronic resource search records; reference interviews and transactions, circulation records, interlibrary loan records, and other personally identifiable uses of library materials, equipment or services.

Contact information for community displays and meeting room use is provided by the user and considered public information.

Persons attending library programs or public meetings may be videotaped or photographed as an audience member. These images may be used for library programming or promotion, including broadcast on the library's website, the Internet, and other media.

The library cannot guarantee the confidentiality of information sought or received, or materials consulted or borrowed from third-party digital services to which we provide access.

At no time will the Library Director, who serves as custodian of the records, release protected records except if a request is submitted in writing and accompanied by an order from the court as outlined in Chapter 22.7 of the Iowa Code

Programming and Partnership Policy

The Library supports its mission of connecting people to information, experiences, and services that enhance their quality of life so our community can learn, enjoy, and thrive by developing and presenting programs that provide additional opportunities for information, learning, and entertainment. Programming is an integral component of library service that:

- Expands the Library's role as a community resource
- Provides opportunities for lifelong learning
- Introduces people to Library resources
- Provides entertainment
- Expands the visibility of the library
- Encourages participation in civic life

Ultimate responsibility for programming at the Library rests with the Library Director, who administers under the authority of the Board of Trustees. The Library Director, in turn, delegates the authority for program management to the Programming MangerManager, who oversees this responsibility through the Programming Team and designated staff.

The Programming Team utilizes Library staff expertise, collections, services, technology, and facilities in developing and delivering programming. The Library's staff use the following criteria in making decisions about program topics, speakers, and accompanying resources:

- Alignment with library mission, vision, values and strategic goals
- Community needs and interests
- Availability of program space
- Treatment of content for intended audience
- Presentation quality
- Presenter background/qualifications in content area
- Budget
- Historical or educational significance
- Connection to other community programs, exhibitions or events
- Relation to Library collections, resources, exhibits and programs

In addition, the Library draws upon other community resources in developing programs and actively partners with other community agencies, organizations, educational and cultural institutions, or-and individuals to develop and present co-sponsored public programs. Professional performers and presenters that reflect specialized or unique expertise may be hired for Library programs; performers and presenters will not be excluded from consideration because of their origin, background, or views, or because of possible controversy. Library staff who present programs do so as part of their regular job and are not hired as outside contractors for programming.

When considering a partnering partnership with an organization or individual for a program or service, the Library will first look to partners in the service area and will prioritize library resources and commitment based on the information below:

Partnership Consideration Filter

	Access	Strategic Fit	Level of Impact	Quality of Service	Brand	Capacity
1	Minimal improvement in reach to target population; provided other places in the City; difficult to scale for relevant population	Weak alignment with strategic priorities	Minimal impact on patron experience	Unknown, mixed or questionable record of service to participants and past partners	Possibly negative press; partner strength is uncertain	Requires us to develop skills that are not relevant or devote resources we don't have
2	Some improvement in reach to target population	Some alignment with strategic priorities; has defined goals	Some impact on patron experience	Promising record of success; have heard some good things from past partner	Uncertain or no effect on brand; stable partner	Free to patrons but no identified funding, space, staff available
3	Reaches target population who would otherwise not receive the service	Promising record of success; have heard some good things from past partner	Noticeable improvement in patron experience	Significant record of success; multiple good references from past partners	Likely positive press or other attention; strong partner	Free to patrons and funding, space, staff identified
4	Reaches hard to reach population (e.g. homeless, at-risk teens); significant demand and not provided elsewhere in City; scale is possible for relevant population	Ideal fit; cuts across multiple priorities; goals are aligned	Will transform patron experience in relevant area	Outstanding track record of success documented by experts; past partners rave about experience	Articles written about it or a topic at conferences that position CRPL as a leader in the library field	Free to patrons and CRPL has time, funding, staff, space & desire to devote those to partnership

All Library programs are open to the public. The Library's philosophy of open access to information and ideas extends to Library programming, and the library does not knowingly discriminate through its programming. Library sponsorship of a program does not constitute an endorsement of the content of the program or the views expressed by participants. Program topics, speakers and resources are not excluded from programs because of possible controversy.

Registration may be required for planning purposes or when space is limited. Programs may be held on site at any Library building or off site through community partners and outreach. Any sales of products at Library programs must be approved by the Library and benefit the Library. Programs are not used for commercial, religious, or partisan purposes or the solicitation of business.

External organizations or individuals partnering with the Library on programs must coordinate marketing efforts with the Library's Community Relations Department.

Director's Report

The Programming department had a busy month, continuing to focus on the programs and events that occur on a regular basis, and working to continuously improve how those programs serve the community. While presenting February programs, the team was also hard at work preparing for Spring programs, and planning Summer programs – all at the same time! It's a busy time of year, but one that this team handles expertly.

The Opportunity Center continues to improve and streamline processes, learning how to help more people on a regular basis, and finding new and creative ways to reach those most in need of service. Classes and workshops continue to expand, and more people discover the benefits of the Opportunity Center every week.

A woman with a young boy stopped me in the Commons to ask where the LEGO and KEVA Plank Club was being held. She was reading an OPEN+ magazine and exclaimed, "I don't think I've been into a library since I was a kid, but we're so excited for the LEGO club. And I'm just reading about all the other great things you are doing." She put down the magazine to walk toward the Children's area, and when I told her she could take a copy with her, she beamed and said thank you.

I loved hearing about how our programming is bringing people into the library and also how our marketing will help keep them coming back. - Alison Gowans, Content Writer One of our Books By Delivery volunteers shared how much she's enjoying delivering materials to the patron she's been connected with.

"She is a sweet lady. I listen as she talks about her books, her neighborhood, her family, and her week. It's a relaxing time of my week. She told me that she enjoys our visits and getting the books delivered to her in person. She says, 'That Michele - she always finds me the best books - ones I've never even heard about and even old books, too.' She talks about Michele like they're dear friends." – Jessica Link, Volunteer Coordinator

The Materials team has been busy at the start of the spring publishing season. Winter is typically very quiet in publishing with a boom of new titles releasing in late February into March. Demand is currently enormous for fantasy/romances dubbed "Romantasy" due to titles going viral on social media. Materials Librarian Kristy has been working on building the Spark Kit collection to fill up the larger space reserved for them on the second floor. Since the new section was created, a large percentage are checked out at any given time. We've recently added pickleball, Pilates, and needle felting kits. One of our most popular kits is a small single page laminator that often has a holds list on it, so we've added additional laminators to meet the need.

Public Service Manager, Todd Simonson, was selected to participate in the IMLS-funded program, "Building Public Library Capacity for Serving High-Needs Patrons". This pilot project is funded through the State of Iowa Library and the goal is to build a training for staff and management in dealing with patrons who come from vulnerable populations. The pilot program will run through March. I was chatting with my hairdresser, and she told me, "Everyone I know is reading these days! All my friends, and all the other women here at the salon! And I just got a Kindle for Christmas - so what do I do next so I can join them?" I told her how to sign up for a library card and about the different apps she could use with it. She said she'd be in soon to get a card, and she would bring her Kindle with her in case she had any questions about how to start using Libby. Then we spent the rest of the haircut chatting about different genres and popular books.

It was just a moment out in the world, but it made me smile to hear her say that reading is the newly popular activity amongst the women that she knows, and to see her get excited about joining the library. - Alison Gowans, Content Writer

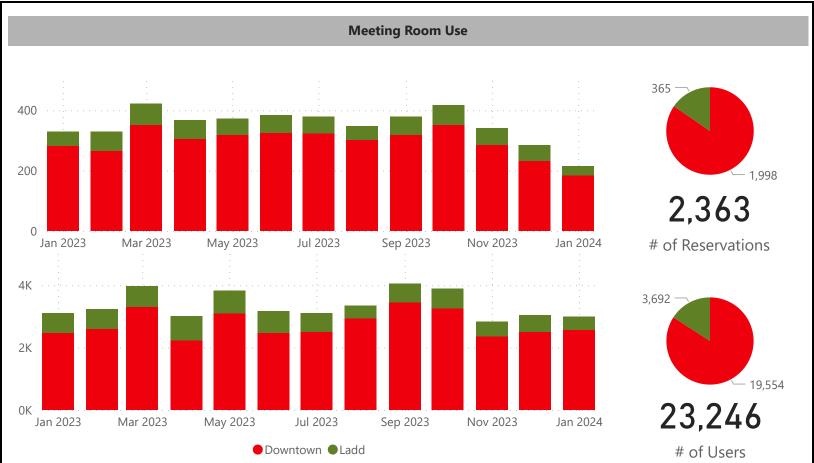

The Technology Solutions team has been working through retention policy implementation plans. The team has been coordinating with City of Cedar Rapids IT department to align retention policies for email and Microsoft Teams. Retention policies save space and simplify processes for public information requests. The team is continuing to install new staff computers and is primarily working through staff stations in the offices. Public work stations have been updated and are working well.

through January for March Board Meeting

Despite the weather, patrons turned out for meeting room reservations in the month of January: approximately 214 events that brought an estimated 2,994 people to the Library. There were slightly fewer celebrations or parties and a broad and diverse use of rooms all the same. People gathered for play groups, DnD Campaigns, coloring groups and Scrabble groups, support groups and Cub Scout meetings which would provide some much-needed connection during the cold winter.

This month also proved to be an important place for civic engagement and learning as the Cedar Rapids Police Department held a fraud awareness workshop. The NAACP hosted a film viewing. Students from City View High School, who have attended class at the library, hosted a Trans Youth Rights Panel that was open to the public and filled the room. Cedar Rapids Community School District held their Magnet School Fair Downtown and UNI's TRIO Program continues to host informational meetings and educational opportunities at both branches.

Community Relations has been busy preparing for the upcoming summer reading challenge, including developing new design elements and making plans for specific targeted marketing opportunities. We are working with our friends in Programming to ensure they have all the resources they need for spring programs as well. This includes posting all library programs on external calendars, for example, which is a tedious but very necessary process. We are also monitoring the happenings in Des Moines to ensure we are staying up to date on advocacy needs. We have been very busy the first part of this legislative session, and will continue to keep our advocates updated as needed.

February wrapped up the last two learning sessions of the YPN early literacy partnership with library. The final session will be held at the library, where families will receive books and take a tour of the library. For many of the foreign language speaking families, this is one of the first times they step foot into a library. It's a great opportunity to connect them with resources and ensure they feel comfortable.
